

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The LEDs of a display panel are arranged in a matrix array and oriented at an angle with the directions of columns or rows. Such an orientation causes the diffused light incident on neighboring LEDs of activated LEDs to create a shaded area with the same aspect ratio of the activated pattern and to yield a virtual stereoscope illusion.